St. Philomena's Graduation: UoM Registrar Stresses Career Skills

Honoring Academic Excellence: Dignitaries and faculty grace the Graduation Ceremony 2025

Mysuru : A total of 239 students of the 2023–25 batch from St. Philomena's College received Post Graduation degrees in Arts, Science and Commerce, during the Graduation Day celebrations held recently. Mrs. M.K. Savitha, Registrar (Administration), University of Mysore (UoM), who delivered the Graduation Day address, said that while degrees hold significance, skills are indispensable.

In today's fast-evolving global economy, degrees alone no longer serve as a passport to success. Employers and entrepreneurial ecosystems now seek individuals capable of critical communication, effective problem-solving, time management, and collaborative work in a digital environment. Stating that graduation is not an end but a new beginning, she emphasised that the ceremony was more than just a celebration of academic success. It signifies the start of professional life, personal development, and lifelong learning. Continuing, Savitha added, whether one aims to enter the corporate world or launch their own startup, skills will be their true capital.

The most essential among these is communication and the ability to articulate ideas clearly. Even with vast knowledge, one cannot convey its depth without strong communication skills. She urged students to be responsible citizen to obsorb culture and to not just survive with education but to build their skills alongside their degrees. Presiding over the event, Rev. Lourdu Prasad stated, motivation must stem from within to bring about societal change. He stressed that having a clear vision is key to achieving success and attaining a true sense of fulfilment. Rev. Fr. Jnana Pragasam, Campus Administrator, Rev. Fr. S. David Sagayaraj, Assistant to the Rector, Dr. Ravi J.D. Saldanha, Principal, Ronald Prakash Cutinha, Vice-Principal (Administration), Nagaraj Urs, Vice-Principal (Academics), Dr. Noor Mubasheer, Coordinator PG Studies Research Centre (Academics), Thomas Gunaseelan, IQAC Coordinator and others were present at the event.

INTERVIEW

" The freedom for which our forefathers fought for isn't being relished by the present generation"

Q1. Do you think this generation really values freedom?

I think the freedom for which our forefathers and freedom fighters fought for isn't being relished by the present generation - the freedom from our foreign invaders. Whereas today, the definition of freedom is perceived as each individual being able to do whatever he/she wants. It is very important that the younger generation really understands the significance of this day.

When you use the word freedom, you must first know how to respect the freedom of others. " If I feel that I am free, that doesn't mean that every citizen free. Whether you are a man, a woman, a small boy or an adult – If you are able to walk on the streets without any fear at any given time of the day/night. If you can freely think the way you want to think, freely express what you would like to express and can write what you really feel like writing. When you possess that freedom, I think that is the real freedom."

Q2. How has modern education moulded the youths?

These days we give too much importance to science, technology and computers; but the educational values is taking the back seat. We have to learn to live as human beings first.

Unfortunately, many in our younger generation grow up in a situation where the parents aren't involved with their children intellectually and emotionally. They are busy in their own work – focused on getting money. They travel and stay in distant places – and the children really don't get to experience that love, affection and kindness from their parents. These vital values are not prioritised today.

So, as a result, "many of our students are growing without any proper human formation"; meaning, firstly I have to be a human. Humans have body, mind and spirit, along with their physical, emotional, intellectual and spiritual needs. All these needs must be met at a very young age. Most often parents fail to realise the significance of their presence in these development stages. So that real human formation does not occur. Parents may think that by putting their children in some good school/college they've given them everything – but the shared values and principles such as sharing, accepting, caring, loving and forgiving one another is not seen in present day families.

Independence Day: Honouring the Past, Empowering Women for India's Future

India celebrates its Independence Day on August 15th every year, marking the end of nearly two centuries of British colonial rule in 1947. It is a day etched in golden letters in the country's history — not merely as a political achievement but as a symbol of unity, resistance, and national pride. Independence Day is more than just a national holiday; it is a collective remembrance of the countless sacrifices made by men and women across generations who fought with unyielding determination to secure freedom. It is a celebration of the values we stand for today — democracy, justice, liberty, and equality. When we speak of the Indian freedom struggle, names like Mahatma Gandhi, Jawaharlal Nehru, and Subhas Chandra Bose naturally come to mind. However, India's journey to freedom was also powered by the courageous contributions of countless women who, despite facing deep-rooted social barriers, stood shoulder to shoulder with their male counterparts in the fight against colonial oppression. Women like Rani Lakshmi Bai of Jhansi symbolized fearless defiance even in the 19th century, laying the foundation for women's participation in political resistance. In the 20th century, leaders such as Sarojini Naidu, Annie Besant, Kasturba Gandhi, and Aruna Asaf Ali took to the streets, led protests, courted arrest, and inspired millions with their voices. They played instrumental roles in the Non-Cooperation Movement, Civil Disobedience Movement, and Quit India Movement, proving that the spirit of nationalism transcended gender lines. Their actions not only challenged the British Raj but also shattered patriarchal norms that confined women to domestic roles. Even after India achieved independence, women continued to be at the forefront of the nation's development. In the post-independence era, the rise of Indira Gandhi as India's first woman Prime Minister marked a significant turning point in Indian political history. Women have since gone on to excel in science, sports, economics, literature, education, and entrepreneurship. Figures such as Kalpana Chawla, the first Indian-origin woman astronaut; Mary Kom, an Olympic medalist in boxing; Nirmala Sitharaman, India's current Finance Minister; and Gita Gopinath, the Deputy Managing Director of the IMF, serve as modern-day inspirations. However, while India has come a long way, the journey toward true gender equality is still in progress. Many Indian women continue to face challenges such as gender-based violence, inequality in access to education and employment, unfair wage gaps, and social discrimination. The struggle today is not against a colonial empire but against deeply embedded social and cultural barriers that prevent many women from realizing their full potential. As we commemorate this day of national pride, let us remember that freedom is not complete unless it is inclusive. True independence means freedom from fear, oppression, and injustice — for everyone, regardless of gender. It is our duty as citizens to create a society where every girl and woman feels safe, valued, and empowered to pursue her dreams without limitations. This Independence Day is not only a moment of celebration but also a moment of reflection and commitment. Let us ask ourselves: Are we doing enough to ensure equal rights and opportunities for women in our homes, workplaces, and communities? Are we raising sons and daughters who believe in equality and respect?

As we hoist the tricolour and sing the national anthem with pride in our hearts, let us pledge to build an India where freedom is not just a constitutional right, but a lived reality for all — especially the women who shape our homes, our societies, and our nation. Empowering women means empowering India. Let us walk together toward a future where every Indian woman enjoys the fruits of freedom — with dignity, opportunity, and justice.

Jai Hind! Vande Mataram!

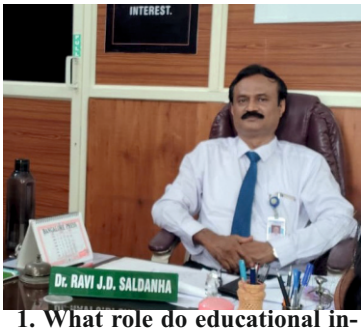

The Safety Anthem

Motherland, we sing to thee,
Land of the brave, the strong, the free.
Your soil has known both tears and flame,
Yet rose in glory, earned your name.
From Himalayas tall to oceans wide,
You are our heart, our joy, our pride.
Jai Hind, O India! Ever shall you shine,
With dreams in our eyes and strength divine.
We pledge our lives, both soul and hand,
To guard and grow our sacred land.
Jai Hind, Jai Hind, forever we'll be,
Children of your legacy.
We hear the echoes of the past,
Of freedom fighters standing fast.
Gandhi's peace and Nehru's dream,
Still guide our spirit like a stream.
From every blood that freedom cost,
We learn to love, not what we lost.
O land of culture, faith, and song,
With diverse hearts, we all belong.
No force can break the bond we feel,
Our unity is India's steel.
In every tongue and every race,
We see the light of India's grace.
We are the youth, the flame anew,
With honest hearts and vision true.
We build, we lead, we dare, we strive,
To keep the nation strong and alive.
For peace and progress, hand in hand,
We'll rise and serve this holy land.
Jai Hind, O India! Forever may you rise,
With freedom's wind beneath your skies.
Through every storm, we'll proudly stand,
Defenders of this motherland.
Jai Hind, Jai Hind, till time is done,
One nation, one soul, ever one

Independence Then And Now; Perspective That Matters

" The freedom for which our forefathers fought for isn't being relished by the present generation"

1. What role do educational institutions play in nurturing patriotic values among students?

At St. Philomena's College, in line with the guidelines of the University Grants Commission (UGC), which emphasizes providing holistic education, we have incorporated a curriculum that promotes and integrates national values. This includes fostering national integration and patriotic spirit among students. The curriculum is aligned with the National Education Policy (NEP) and the State Education Policy (SEP). We give importance to topics such as inculcating national spirit, unity, and patriotism. Various programs and activities related to these themes are organized regularly to instil a sense of national pride and responsibility among students. We celebrate Independence Day and Republic Day every year with great enthusiasm. Activities are conducted involving students, faculty, and the local community. Additionally, we extend our outreach by visiting nearby villages and city outskirts, where we conduct awareness programs and social activities, thereby reinforcing the values of nation-building and civic responsibility.

2. What role does education play in women empowerment especially in the college?

St. Philomena's College, Mysuru, stands as a proud beacon of women empowerment. Rooted in values of equality, education, and self-reliance, the institution has long been nurturing young women into confident, capable leaders of tomorrow. From providing quality education in arts, science, and commerce to encouraging participation in NCC, NSS, cultural clubs, and academic forums Philomena's creates an environment where every girl is seen, heard, and celebrated. Through workshops on gender sensitivity, self-defence training, career guidance, and mentorship by inspiring faculty, the college fosters not just education, but empowerment in every form. Alumnae from Philomena's go on to become teachers, scientists, entrepreneurs, social workers, and change makers, proving that empowerment starts in the classroom — but echoes far beyond. Apart from those we do visit nearby villages and conduct skilled based programs, I'll based programs to local women, frequently programs on skill development are also being organised apart from the awareness programs.

Prof. Juhie Shares Insights on Women's Education, Rights, and Empowerment in Independent India

Ms. Juhie is a St. Philomena's College (Autonomous) professor in the Department of Commerce. She gave us an interview on the women rights, and women empowerment as her opinion.

Q1. Since it's been seventy-eight years of independence, what is the role of women education playing in the role of women empowerment?

I think we Indians, I think ancient Indians also, women were very well educated? It's only in between we lost. When the Mughals came in, the Britishers came in. We really lost out really badly. But again, I think the government has made considerable efforts in all its policies to help the women in India to,. you know, right now we are having that slogan which says I think Betty Bachao Betty Padhao. So that's also a great way of encouraging women to come up and get themselves educated. And traditionally I think in our families it has been a tradition and culture of Indian women to get themselves educated, be somebody and be independent by themselves. So that's also a great way of encouraging women to come up and get themselves educated. And traditionally I think in our families it has been a tradition and culture of Indian women to get themselves educated, be somebody and be independent by themselves. So, all the governments have taken the right approach in educating women. It's only that maybe we did not make use of that opportunity somewhere, but otherwise I think we have got all the opportunities.

Q2. Do you see an actual difference between women's rights in pre-independence and post-independence and during the independence war?

We were suppressed by the Britishers and before that by the Mughals. Women were scared of going out because of the way they were being treated. They were a lot of atrocities against women were committed. As a result, the society which was so open-minded about women became con servative because of all these influences and invasions that took place. So definitely women were subdued, they did not have rights, they did experi ence a lot of trauma, and they did not have equal privileges., A lots of women fought for it. There are a lot of women in history who fought for it.

Q3. Do you think that the women have achieved ultimate freedom when it comes to independence?

I believe that woman has reached a level where she can enjoy her independence. But again, it depends on which kinda society you are she is coming from. There are the women who are privileged, who have equal rights, not because of their economic status, but the way the family and the environ ment treats them. So, in India there are some approaches where or societies or environments which thrives and promotes women culture and women empowerment.

Cinema and Freedom: Celebrating Independence Day Through the Indian Lens

As the nation proudly unfurls the tricolour on 15th August, we re member not just the day we gained independence in 1947, but also the ideals that continue to shape our democracy — liberty, justice, and equality. While textbooks preserve the facts of history, cinema brings emotion and perspective to the sto ry of freedom. Over the decades, Indian films have become a mirror of our evolving society and a trib ute to the heroes—both historic and modern—who fight for justice and independence. From the early days of Indian cinema, filmmakers have paid homage to the brave souls who fought for our independence. Movies such as "Shaheed", "The Legend of Bhagat Singh", "Netaji Subhas ChandraBose: The Forgotten Hero", and "Sardar Udham" bring alive the stories of our revolutionaries. These films remind viewers of the resilience, sacrifice, and patriotism that won India its freedom from British rule. By dramatizing historic events, cinema doesn't just educate it inspires a new generation to understand and value the struggles behind our freedom. As India has evolved, so too has its cinema. Today, the meaning of independence extends beyond colonial freedom. It includes freedom of thought, expression, equality, opportunity, and identity.Films like "Swades" explore the importance of returning to one's roots and serving the nation. "Article 15" takes a bold stand against caste based discrimination, reminding us that social freedom is still a work in progress. "Pink" and "Thappad" tackle women's rights, consent, and personal dignity — issues at the very heart of individual liberty.

In a country as diverse as India, cinema has become a powerful tool to question injustice, highlight inequality, and encourage citizens to reflect on their role in building a better, freer nation. What makes films so impactful is their ability to reach the masses. Whether it's a song, a dialogue, or a moving scene, cinema stirs emotion and action. Movies like "Chak De! India", "Raazi", and "Lagaan" highlight patriotism in unique ways not just through war or rebellion, but through sport, intelligence, and collective effort.get that.

India's 5-Year Plan: A Student's Vision for 2030

As we step into the second half of this decade, the horizon of 2030 doesn't feel like a distant dream anymore it's right around the corner. And with it come expectations, hopes, and, most importantly,responsibilities.

Everyone's talking about "India at 2047", but what about India @ 2030? The next five years will either build the runway for that vision or expose the cracks we've been too hesitant to fix.

This isn't a government policy breakdown or a jargon-filled essay. This is a student's perspective. A citizen's lens. My lens. What I want for my country, what I believe needs to happen by 2030, and what we as students and youth must not ignore.

By 2030, I don't want to see students cramming just to pass exams. I want to see real learning skill-based, practical, meaningful education.

We're still chasing marks instead of meaning. The National Education Policy (NEP) talks about flexibility, creativity, and holistic development. But for that to truly work, we need proper implementation not just big words in o cial documents.

Can we stop measuring intelligence by a 3-hour paper and start valuing ideas, critical thinking, and emotional intelligence? By 2030, let's aim for a system that doesn't produce robots but thinkers, dreamers, and problem-solvers.

This one's harsh, but it needs to be said degrees today don't match the job market's reality. Youth unemployment is high, and underemployment is worse.

By 2030, I want to see skill-based hiring across industries. Internships should be mandatory in all colleges. Entrepreneurship must be encouraged without the fear of failure. And most importantly, we need to stop shaming those who take alternative career paths. Artists, freelancers, writers, coders, mechanics they're all building India too.

We need jobs for the future, not for the past.

Let's be honest our generation is tired. Anxious. Overwhelmed. And barely anyone talks about it seriously. Mental health is still taboo in too many homes, schools, and workplaces.

By 2030, we need fully functional counselling systems in all educational institutions. Not just for namesake, but for real support. We need awareness campaigns, peer support networks, and most importantly listening.

It's not a weakness. It's survival.

The youth is burning out before even entering the workforce. That has to change.

Skyscrapers are cool. Highways even cooler. But can we talk about the fact that many of our cities can barely breathe anymore?

Air quality. Water scarcity. Plastic overload. These aren't distant future threats. They're here, now.

I want 2030 to be the year where sustainable development isn't an optional checkbox, but the blueprint. Urban planning needs to consider both the skyline and the soil. Electric mobility, public transport, green energy, conscious consumption these shouldn't be buzzwords. They should be everyday realities.

This one's close to heart. In recent years, we've seen more di vision than dialogue. More hate than harmony. And it's exhausting.

By 2030, I hope we grow out of this "us vs them" mindset and into a space of true unity. Not just in slogans or on paper but in reality.

As students, we must lead this. We must question, discuss, and bridge gaps not deepen them.

So, What's the Plan?

The plan isn't just the government's job. It's ours too.

We can't afford to sit back and expect change to arrive like a delivery parcel. We need to vote wisely, speak loudly, act responsibly, and dream fiercely.

India's five-year plan isn't just about GDP growth, policy reforms, or global rankings. It's about the ground we stand on, the classrooms we learn in, the air we breathe, and the future we fight for.

2030 isn't far. And honestly it isn't too late either.

Changing Face of India: 77 Years of Freedom

This year, India completes 78 years as an independent nation a journey marked by transformation, resilience, and continuous evolution. What began in 1947 as hard-earned freedom has grown into a living testimony of what a diverse, democratic country can achieve when driven by unity, determination, and vision.

The India of then t the dawn of independence, India was a nation emerging from the shadows of colonial rule. Its economy was fragile, infrastructure scarce, and millions struggled with poverty and illiteracy. The challenges were immense: to create a cohesive identity from a land of many languages, religions, and cultures and to uplift a nation that had been denied basic rights for centuries.

The India of Now

Fast forward to 2025, and the landscape is unrecognizably different. India is now a spacefaring nation, a global IT hub, and one of the fastest-growing economies in the world. It leads global conversations on climate change, digital innovation, and diplomacy.

Rural India is slowly being connected through technology. Women are asserting their voices in politics and business. The youth are leading change with passion and purpose.

The transformation has not been without its struggles. We continue to grapple with inequality, political polarization, environmental concerns, and the need for inclusive development. But every step forward rea rms our potential as a nation that dares to dream and rebuild again and again.

The 78th year of independence is not just a time to commemorate the past; it is a moment to reflect on what lies ahead.

The face of India has changed, but the core values that shaped our freedom struggle democracy, justice, and pluralism must con - tinue to guide us. It is up to this generation and the next to uphold that legacy, question injustices, and shape a future that is sustainable, equitable, and truly free.

India's freedom is not just a date in history it is a living, evolving journey. From the ashes of colonization to the heights of aspiration, the face of India has changed and will keep changing with every voice that speaks, every mind that thinks, and every citizen who believes in the idea of India.

India's Cultural Pulse: The Echo That Shaped

India's culture is like a living, breathing story that has been told for thousands of years. It's not just about one thing; it's a vibrant mix of ancient wisdom, diverse traditions, and a spirit of togetherness that has left a lasting mark on the world. Think about religion. India is the birthplace of some of the world's most important faiths: Hinduism, Buddhism, Jainism, and Sikhism. These religions gave the world ideas like karma and non-violence, which have inspired people for centuries. For example, Mahatma Gandhi's philosophy of peaceful resistance, or 'Ahimsa,' came from these roots and later influenced civil rights leaders like Martin Luther King Jr. and Nelson Mandela. Beyond faith, India's cultural influence is everywhere. The practice of yoga, which started in India, is now a global phenomenon. Millions of people around the world use it to stay healthy and find peace of mind. The same goes for Indian food; spices like turmeric, cumin, and cardamom are now staples in kitchens across the globe. Art and entertainment also carry India's pulse. The colorful, musical world of Bollywood is loved by audiences from Nigeria to Russia. Indian classical dances and music have inspired artists and performers everywhere. Even the numbers we use every day, including the number zero, have their origins in ancient India. What makes India truly unique is its "unity in diversity." The country is home to over a billion people speaking dozens of languages, each with their own unique traditions. Apart from all the diversities and differences yet, they all share a common thread of being Indian. This idea of celebrating differences while staying united is a powerful message for the world, especially in an age of globalization. India's cultural pulse is a powerful echo that continues to shape our world. Its ancient wisdom, diverse traditions, and ability to blend the old with the new have given us everything from philosophy and science to food and entertainment. It is a culture that has not only survived but thrived, influencing the way we think, eat, and live.

To the Motherland India,

With a heart full of gratitude, I acknowledge the soil that nurtured my roots. Yet, with a heavy heart, I see shadows of inequality dimming your radiance.

My dream is a symphony where every voice harmonizes, and my hope is that your tapestry reflects justice and unity. May your tricolour always soar high, guiding us towards a brighter tomorrow. But I must be honest too. There are cracks in your walls, India — corruption, inequality, and divisions that sometimes feel deeper than they should.

I dream of a day when the young girl in a village gets the same opportunities as a boy in a big city; when cleanliness is not just a campaign but a habit; when every voice, however small, can speak without fear.

Amthul Noor

Dear India,

Thank you for your boundless spirit your colours, languages, chaos, and calm. You've taught resilience through every monsoon and miracle. Yet, I ache at your injustices: the silenced voices, the stifled dreams, the lines drawn too deep.

I dream of a kinder India, where progress doesn't leave the poor behind, where women walk free at night, and every child reads with light in their eyes. You are ancient, vast, and still becoming.

I believe in what you can be. These pains do not make me love you less, but they remind me that love must also question. The orange sunrises over your villages, the ancient temples whispering history, the festivals that light up even the darkest nights.

Rohan

Dear India,

I write to you not just as a citizen, but as someone who carries your name in every heartbeat. You are the melody in a mother's lullaby, the rhythm of temple bells, and the fragrance of jasmine and monsoon rain. You are my roots, my history, and my story.

Thank you for your beauty in the snow peaks of the Himalayas and the quiet backwaters of Kerala in the colours of Holi and the Diya's of Diwali in the courage of your freedom fighters and the wisdom of your poets. You have taught me resilience, compassion, and the ability to celebrate life even in its simplest form.

I dream of an India where unity is stronger than politics, and kindness stronger than hate.

India, you are not perfect — but you are precious. I will keep loving you, questioning you, and dreaming for you. Because you are not just a country. You are a promise.

I dream of an India where innovation thrives alongside tradition, where progress is not built by forgetting the past but by honouring it.

Daniel Silverster

Dear India,

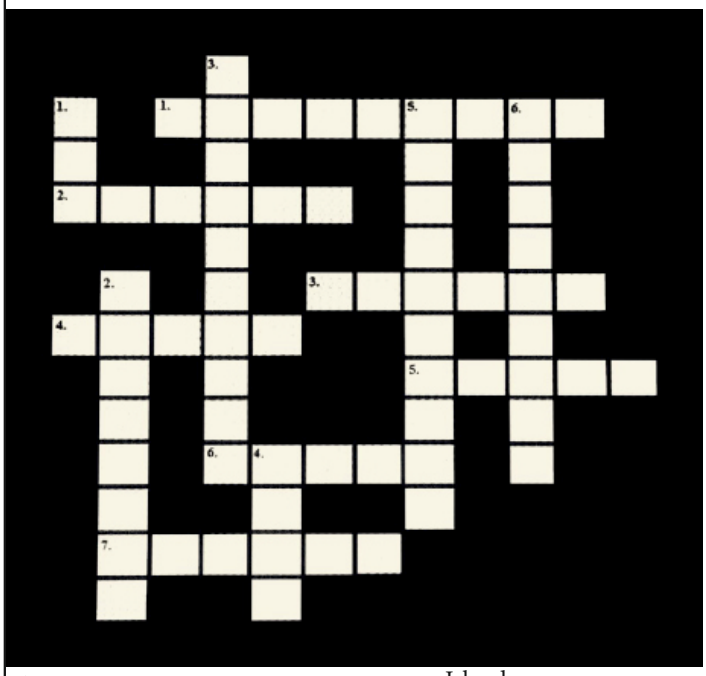

I write to you as one of your many children — shaped by your history, carried by your culture, and inspired by your spirit. You are more than a country; you are a heartbeat, a song, a story that began thousands of years ago and still unfolds each day.

Thank you for your gifts — the warmth of your people, the richness of your traditions, the wisdom of your thinkers, and the courage of those who fought for your freedom. Your colours, your festivals, your languages, your music — they remind me how extraordinary it is to belong to you.

But my love for you also brings honesty. There are shadows that dim your light — corruption that steals opportunities, poverty that chains too many dreams, and divisions that sometimes drown out your promise of unity. These are wounds we cannot ignore if we wish to see you flourish.

Independence Day: A Wake-Up Call for India's Youth

Every year on August 15, India celebrates its freedom with flag hoisting's, patriotic songs, cultural events, and a flood of social media posts. But beyond the celebrations lies a deeper question what does freedom truly mean to today's youth? For the younger generation, freedom is something we're born into.

We speak freely, pursue careers, use technology, and express opinions without fear. But this was not always the case. The liberty we enjoy today was won through sacrifice by revolutionaries, workers, students, and everyday people who dared to dream of a free India. Icons like Bhagat Singh, who was only 23 when he laid down his life, and Kalpana Dutt, who faced a death sentence for her role in the freedom movement, remind us that change has always come from bold, young voices.

Fast forward to 2025 India is free, but not fully awakened. New challenges persist: digital distractions, mental health concerns, inequality, and societal divisions. This raises a crucial question: Are we truly free if we're still bound by ignorance or indifference?

The Role of Youth Today Independence Day should be more than a memory of the past; it must be a reminder of our responsibility in the present. True patriotism lies not in one day of celebration but in daily choices: Speaking out against injustice.

Voting responsibly Supporting local communities Choosing knowledge over noise Promoting unity over division Whether it's a student launching a social cause, a young teacher helping underserved children, or a volunteer planting trees-these are modern acts of freedom.

This Independence Day, let's shift the focus from asking "What's the holiday plan?" to "What's my contribution to my country?" Let us become leaders in our own ways not just in moments of national pride, but in everyday acts of responsibility and compassion. Because India doesn't just need patriotic youth on August 15 it needs awakened youth, every single day.

Jai Hind. Jai Bharat.

78 Years of Independence – A Journey of Progress and Promise

On 15th August 2024, India celebrates 78 years of independence from British colonial rule. This day marks not only a historic victory but also the beginning of a journey filled with hope, resilience, progress, and challenges. From 1947 to 2024, India has grown into a vibrant democracy and one of the fastest-growing economies in the world.

The story of independent India is a testament to the strength, unity, and vision of its people. India's independence did not come easily. It was achieved after nearly two centuries of British rule and a long, determined struggle led by iconic leaders such as Mahatma Gandhi, Jawaharlal Nehru, Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel, Subhas Chandra Bose, and Bhagat Singh.

Millions of Indians took part in protests, non-violent movements, and revolts. Many were imprisoned or made the ultimate sacrifice. The partition of 1947, which caused immense violence and displacement, remains a painful chapter in our collective memory. Post-independence, India adopted its democratic Constitution in 1950, giving every citizen the right to vote and actively participate in governance.

Drafted by Dr. B.R. Ambedkar and others, the Constitution guarantees justice, liberty, equality, and fraternity. Over the past 78 years, India has continued to uphold free and fair elections and maintain its democratic spirit through challenging times. India has made remarkable strides in several key areas: •Education: From low literacy rates in 1947, India now boasts a vast network of schools, colleges, and world-class universities. •Science and Technology: With institutions like ISRO, India has emerged as a leader in space research, IT, and pharmaceuticals. •Economy: Today, India is the fifth-largest economy globally, with thriving industries, agriculture, and service sectors. •Healthcare: Despite ongoing challenges, India has made significant improvements—eradicating diseases like polio and increasing life expectancy.

Alongside progress, India still faces enduring challenges such as poverty, corruption, unemployment, and social inequality based on caste and gender. Yet, countless reforms and grassroots movements have aimed to build a more inclusive and just society. Improved women's rights, access to education, and digital inclusion are paving the way for lasting change. India's youth are the torchbearers of its next chapter. Independence is not only about remembering the past—it is about shaping the future. With education, innovation, responsibility, and integrity as guiding values, the younger generation can lead the nation toward a brighter tomorrow.

One of India's greatest strengths is its unity in diversity. With 22 o cial languages, hundreds of dia lects, multiple religions, and rich cultural traditions, India remains united as one nation. Despite our differences, our shared history and common vision continue to bring us together.

As India celebrates 78 years of independence, let us not only remember the sacrifices of the past but also renew our commitment to building a stronger, more inclusive, and progressive nation. Jai Hind! Jai Bharat!

ಸ್ವಾತಂತ್ರ್ಯ ಕೇವಲ ಹಬ್ಬವಲ್ಲ ಹೋರಾಟದ ಛಾಯೆ!

ಪ್ರತಿಯೊಬ್ಬ ಭಾರತೀಯನ ಹೃದಯದಲ್ಲಿ ಧ್ವನಿತವಾಗುವಭಾವನಾತ್ಮಕ ದಿನವೆಂದರೆ ಆಗಸ್ಟ್ 15. ನಮ್ಮ ದೇಶವನ್ನು ಬಡವರಿಂದ ಶ್ರೀಮಂತರವರೆಗೆ ಎಲ್ಲರೂ ಸಮಾನವಾಗಿ ನೆನೆಪಿಸುವ ದಿನ ಇದು. 1947ರಲ್ಲಿ ಬ್ರಿಟಿಷರ ಆಡಳಿತದಿಂದ ಭಾರತ ಮುಕ್ತವಾಯಿತು. ಆಗಿನಿಂದ ಇಲ್ಲಿವರೆಗೆ ಎಲ್ಲರ ಬಾಳಿನಲ್ಲಿ ಹೊಸ ಬೆಳಕಿನ ಛಾಯೆ ಮೂಡಿತು. ಗಾಂಧೀಜಿ, ನೆಹರು, ಸುಭಾಷ್ ಚಂದ್ರ ಬೋಸ್, ಭಗತ್ ಸಿಂಗ್ ಸೇರಿ ಅನೇಕ ಹೋರಾಟಗಾರರು ತಮ್ಮ ಪ್ರಾಣ ತ್ಯಾಗದ ಮೂಲಕ ಈ ದಿನವನ್ನು ನಮಗೆ ಉಡುಗೊರೆಯಾಗಿ ನೀಡಿದ್ದಾರೆ. ಆದರೆ ಇಂದಿನ ಪೀಳಿಗೆಗೆ ಸ್ವಾತಂತ್ರ್ಯ ದಿನ ಕೇವಲ ಆಚರಣೆಯ ದಿನವಾಗಿಯೇ ಉಳಿದಿದೆ.

ಸಾಮಾಜಿಕ ಜಾಲತಾಣದಲ್ಲಿ ಪೋಸ್ಟ್‌ಗಳನ್ನು ಹಂಚಿಕೊಳ್ಳುವುದರಲ್ಲೇ ನಾವು ತೃಪ್ತರಾಗುತ್ತಿದ್ದೇವೆ; ಆದರೆ ನಾವೇನು ಕೊಡುಗೆಯನ್ನು ಸಮಾಜಕ್ಕೆ ನೀಡುತ್ತಿದ್ದೇವೆ ಎಂಬ ಪ್ರಶ್ನೆ ನಿಜಕ್ಕೂ ಸರಿದಿಲ್ಲ.

ಸ್ವಾಭಿಮಾನದಿಂದ ಬದುಕುವುದು, ತತ್ವದಿಂದ ನಿಂತು ಮಾತನಾಡುವುದು, ಹೆಣ್ಣು ಮಕ್ಕಳಿಗೆ ಶಿಕ್ಷಣ, ಬಡವರಿಗೆ ಹಕ್ಕು ಮತ್ತು ಎಲ್ಲರಿಗೂ ಸಮಾನ ಅವಕಾಶಗಳು ದೊರಕುವ ಸಮಾಜ ನಿರ್ಮಿಸುವ ಹೋರಾಟವೇ ನಿಜವಾದ ಸ್ವಾತಂತ್ರ್ಯ ಸಂಭ್ರಮ.

ಆದ್ದರಿಂದ, ಈ ಸ್ವಾತಂತ್ರ್ಯ ದಿನಾಚರಣೆಯಲ್ಲಿ ನಾವು ಭಾರತೀಯ ಸಂವಿಧಾನದ ಪ್ರಾಮಾಣಿಕ ಮೌಲ್ಯಗಳಾದ ಪ್ರಜಾಪ್ರಭುತ್ವ, ಧರ್ಮನಿರಪೇಕ್ಷತೆ ಮತ್ತು ಸಮಾನತೆಯನ್ನು ನೆನೆಸಿಕೊಳ್ಳೋಣ ಮತ್ತು ನಮ್ಮ ಜವಾಬ್ದಾರಿಗಳನ್ನು ನಿಷ್ಠೆಯಿಂದ ಪಾಲಿಸೋಣ. ಈ ಹಬ್ಬವನ್ನು ಕೇವಲ ಆಚರಣೆಗೆ ಸೀಮಿತಪಡಿಸದೆ, ನಮ್ಮ ದೈನಂದಿನ ಜೀವನದಲ್ಲೂ ದೇಶಭಕ್ತಿಯನ್ನು ಜಾಗೃತಗೊಳಿಸೋಣ.

ಸ್ವಾತಂತ್ರ್ಯ ದಿನಾಚರಣೆ ಅಂದರೆ ಕೇವಲ ತ್ರಿವರ್ಣ ಧ್ವಜ ಹಾರಿಸುವುದು, ಪಟಾಕಿ ಸಿಡಿಸುವುದು ಅಥವಾ ಶಾಲೆಗಳಲ್ಲಿ ಭಾಷಣ ಮಾಡುವುದಷ್ಟೇ ಅಲ್ಲ. ಇದು ಪ್ರತಿಯೊಬ್ಬ ನಾಗರಿಕನಿಗೂ ತನ್ನ ದೇಶದ ಬಗ್ಗೆ ಜವಾಬ್ದಾರಿ ಅರಿತು, ದೇಶದ ಪ್ರಗತಿಗೆ ಕೈಜೋಡಿಸಲು ಸ್ಮರಣೆಯ ದಿನವಾಗಬೇಕು.

ಇಂದು ನಾವು ತಂತ್ರಜ್ಞಾನದಲ್ಲಿ ಅಭಿವೃದ್ಧಿಯಾಗಿದ್ದರೂ, ಇನ್ನೂ ಗ್ರಾಮೀಣ ಪ್ರದೇಶಗಳಲ್ಲಿ ಶಿಕ್ಷಣ, ಆರೋಗ್ಯ ಮತ್ತು ಸ್ವಚ್ಛತೆ ಮುಂತಾದ ಮೂಲಭೂತ ಸೌಲಭ್ಯಗಳ ಕೊರತೆಯಿದೆ. ಈ ವಿರೋಧಾಭಾಸಗಳನ್ನು ನಿವಾರಿಸುವ ಹೊಣೆ ನಮ್ಮದು.

ಸ್ವಾತಂತ್ರ್ಯವನ್ನು ನೆನೆಸಿಕೊಳ್ಳುವುದು ಅಂದರೆ, ನಮ್ಮ ನಾಡಿನ ಇತರರ ಸಮಸ್ಯೆಗಳನ್ನು ನಮ್ಮದ್ದೆಂದು ಅರ್ಥಮಾಡಿಕೊಳ್ಳುವುದು.

ಇಂದಿನ ಯುವ ಪೀಳಿಗೆಗೆ ಬಹುಮಟ್ಟಿಗೆ ಸ್ವಾತಂತ್ರ್ಯ ದೊರಕಿದೆ. ಆದರೆ ನಾವು ಅದನ್ನು ಹೇಗೆ ಉಪಯೋಗಿಸುತ್ತಿದ್ದೇವೆ ಎಂಬುದು ಮುಖ್ಯ. ನಾವು ದೈನಂದಿನ ಬದುಕಿನಲ್ಲಿ ಸತ್ಯ, ಧರ್ಮ, ನ್ಯಾಯ ಇತ್ಯಾದಿಗಳನ್ನು ಪಾಲಿಸುತ್ತಿದ್ದೇವೆಯೇ? ನಾವು ನಮ್ಮ ಹಕ್ಕುಗಳನ್ನು ಕೇಳಿಕೊಳ್ಳುವಂತೆಯೇ ಕರ್ತವ್ಯಗಳನ್ನು ನೆರವೇರಿಸುತ್ತಿದ್ದೇವೆಯೇ? ಈ ಹಬ್ಬದ ಸಂದರ್ಭದಲ್ಲಿ ನಾವು ಭಾರತೀಯ ಸಂವಿಧಾನದಲ್ಲಿ ಉಲ್ಲೇಖಿಸಿರುವ ಮೌಲ್ಯಗಳನ್ನು ಮನನ ಮಾಡಬೇಕು ಜಾತಿ, ಧರ್ಮ, ಭಾಷೆ, ಲಿಂಗ ಎಲ್ಲಕ್ಕೂ ಮೀರಿ ಎಲ್ಲರಿಗೂ ಸಮಾನತೆ ದೊರಕಬೇಕೆಂಬ ಧ್ಯೇಯವನ್ನು ತಳಮಟ್ಟದಲ್ಲಿ ಜಾರಿಗೆ ತರುವ ಹೊಣೆ ನಮ್ಮದಾಗಿರಬೇಕು. ಒಂದು ನಿಜವಾದ ಸ್ವಾತಂತ್ರ ಭಾರತ ಎಂದರೆ ಎಲ್ಲರೂ ಶ್ರದ್ಧೆಯಿಂದ ಕೆಲಸ ಮಾಡುವ, ಪರಸ್ಪರ ಗೌರವದಿಂದ ಬದುಕುವ, ಪರಿಸರವನ್ನು ಕಾಪಾಡುವ ಮತ್ತು ಭ್ರಷ್ಟಾಚಾರವಿಲ್ಲದ ಸಮಾಜವನ್ನು ನಿರ್ಮಿಸುವ ರಾಷ್ಟ್ರ.ಹೀಗಾಗಿ, ಈ ಆಗಸ್ಟ್ 15ರಂದು ನಾವು ನಮ್ಮೊಳಗಿನ ದೇಶಭಕ್ತಿಯನ್ನು ಮತ್ತೆ ಜಾಗೃತಗೊಳಿಸಿ, ಗಾಂಧೀಜಿ ಹೇಳಿದಂತೆ "ನೀವು ಬಯಸುವ ಬದಲಾವಣೆಯಾಗಿರಿ" ಎಂಬ ಮಾತಿಗೆ ತಕ್ಕಂತೆ ಬದುಕೋಣ. ಏಕೆಂದರೆ ಸ್ವಾತಂತ್ರ್ಯ ಕೇವಲ ತೋರಿಕೆಗೆ ಹಾರುವ ಧ್ವಜವಲ್ಲ, ಅದು ನಿತ್ಯದ ನಡವಳಿಕೆಯಲ್ಲಿ ಮೆರೆಯಬೇಕಾದ ಜೀವನಮೌಲ್ಯ

Postcards from a Divided Country: Are We Independent from Each Other?

Every year on August 15th, we raise flags, repost patriotic reels, and call ourselves free free from colonial rule, free as citizens of the world's largest democracy. But 78 years later, here's a question we're not asking enough: Are we really free from each other? Okay, We Got Freedom. But From Whom, exactly? Sure, we kicked out the British in 1947. But the uncomfortable truth is, we never quite kicked out the divisions they left behind—we just changed how they look. We still judge people based on caste, religion, region, gender, language, or class. We don't always say it out loud (at least not in public), but it's everywhere in the jokes we crack, the people we avoid, the jobs we deny, the news we believe, and the weddings we stop. So yes, we got political freedom. But social freedom? Mental freedom? Emotional freedom from hate and bias? That's still on pending. Let's be real. How many of us have heard a landlord say, "Sorry, no Muslims allowed"? Or someone whisper, "He's from that caste don't get too close"? Or seen a Northeastern student mocked with "Chinese" slurs? Or laughed at a joke stereotyping South Indians or North Indians? These aren't "rare incidents." They're everyday reality. And they're not happening because of the British. They're happening because we never unlearned the hate. So, tell me—Are we one country? Or just a bunch of groups living near each other, pretending to be united?

We've turned patriotism into an Instagram filter. We celebrate Independence Day Sales more than the values the day is supposed to stand for. Don't get me wrong I love the national anthem. I love seeing people celebrate. But if we only remember India once a year, what exactly are we celebrating? A date on the calendar? A long weekend? If we shout "Jai Hind" but spew hate the next minute based on someone's name is that patriotism, or just performance? It's not how loudly you sing the anthem It's how quietly you respect someone different from you. It's not banning films or books It's being secure enough to allow expression, even when you disagree. It's not gatekeeping religion, language, or culture It's sharing space without superiority. It's not just celebrating freedom It's asking who still doesn't have it, and why. We can't keep pretending we're this perfectly united country when so many people still feel left out, judged, silenced, or unsafe. I don't hold o ce. I'm not a policymaker. But I see the cracksand I refuse to stay silent. Ifwewanttofixthis,weneedtotalk. To question what we're taught. To confront our own biases.

Don't just wear the flag Carry the weight of what it actually means. Ask the questions no one's asking. Speak the truth that makes people uncomfortable. Because real freedom isn't easy. It's earned—and protected—by those who care enough to fight for an India that includes everyone. "We may be free from the British—but are we free from each other?

The Safety Anthem

Stand, not just for the anthem—
but for the girl who never made it home.
For the schoolbag still waiting by the door,
for the voice that was silenced too soon.

Don't cover your chest with patriotism,
while she walks with fear wrapped around her skin.
Don't raise your hand to salute,
if that same hand once stole her voice.

A nation is not built on bricks and borders—
but on every daughter who dares to dream, on every mother who walks home safe,
on every child who sleeps without jumping at shadows.

We've celebrated heroes in songs,
but never gave survivors the mic.
We sing "Saare Jahan Se Achha", while her pain echoes through its streets.

When her story isn't breaking news, when her laughter drowns out the fear—
only then, shall we rise and call this nation safe.
