HUMAN VALUES

ALL INDIA ASSOCIATION FOR CHRISTIAN HIGHER EDUCATION
New Delhi

FOREWORD

The All India Association for Christian Higher Education (AIACHE) is an Ecumenical professional Association of Higher Education colleges in India, founded in 1967. It has in its fold, colleges belonging to different Christian denominations in India. AIACHE aims at the renewal and growth of member colleges as well as the promotion of quality, value-orientation and social relevance of Indian higher education to achieve the goal of national integration.

Christian missionaries of all churches gave to India one of the most powerful tools for its growth and development, viz. Education. Today, If India commands respect in the international scenario, it is mostly because of the empowerment millions of Indians got through higher education which has led to advancement in all fields. Though our achievement in Science and Technology is remarkable, our country has the dubious distinction of being branded as one of the most corrupt nations. We still have lurking illiteracy and rampant poverty. Millions of infants in India die due to malnutrition. In spite of all these, we have some of the richest people in the world and the size of the middle class is increasing steadily, making India one of the most sought after markets for consumer goods.

On the social front our caste stricken society is being dehumanized every day. Violations of human rights, scant respect to women, flouting of rights specially those of children and increasing apathy to the needs and pains of others has been very disturbing. Sometimes, we wonder, how this sub-continent known for its tolerance, respect to all creeds and faiths, known for its respect to elders, women and hospitality has come to such a sad state. Can we dream of a better future? I for one, am optimistic and strongly believe, there can be a change for the better. The ray of hope is in our children and specially the youth, who constitute a sizable part of the population. AIACHE in its constant search for bringing about qualitative change in society through the institutions of higher education under its fold, has launched on a HUMAN VALUES DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMME(HVDP). This is a part of this programme.

AIACHE is now bringing out a revised version of the book on 'Human Values Development Programme' which was launched in December 2013 during the National Assembly of Students, Trichy. A number of people have appreciated the initiative taken by AIACHE and also had suggested that the book should be revised and made more appealing. We are extremely grateful to Mr. PWC Davidar, IAS, Principal Secretary (P & AR), Government of Tamilnadu and Dr. Mrs. Shanthi Davidar, Consultant Psychiatrist, Chennai and the Rapha Unlimited team who took all the pains in revising the HVDP book and making it colourful and appealing to the youth who will use this. We are grateful to the Go Media team for the Layout and Design. I also congratulate and thank Dr. Daniel Ezhila-rasu, General Secretary, AIACHE who has been the brain behind the whole project.
A number of like minded persons have worked on this HVDP programme and have prepared this book. It is intended that this book will serve as a handbook for teaching value education in our colleges. The book is intended to bring about awareness reflection and action among our youth about the value system that is prevalent today. They need to reflect on the urgency of revitalizing the institution of family which should be the cradle to nurture sound values. In a world which promotes selfishness, cut throat competition, propagates insensitive attitudes, we need to inculcate values of love, sharing, integrity, concern and respect for others. It is our fond wish that this book will serve that purpose.

I am grateful to all who have contributed their share in preparing and revising this book. My sincere thanks to all those who have given constructive suggestions. I wish that all students who study in the member colleges of AIACHE will make the best use of this book and become agents of qualitative change in our value system.

Fr. Leslie Moras
President, AIACHE

PREFACE

The first edition of the book on "Human Value Development" is the immediate response of the call given by the Chairman of the UGC in January 2012.

We are happy to present the second edition to our youth, academics and all other stakeholders who value the importance of nurturing and internalizing human values in youth. The process begins from the womb and continues till the end. Parents play an important role in moulding behavior and attitudes. Our schools and colleges help develop values essential for life. While we live in a pluralistic society, acquiring the best of human values help us to imbibe righteous conduct, truth, peace, non-violence and love which we derive from the following four personality domains – physical, intellectual, emotional and spiritual.

HVDP aims to cover three domains of human personality viz, self, interpersonal and social and also to incorporate in youth, specific values associated with it for personal growth and developing the same through education and value education. This programme is path breaking and is offered as a gift to our Nation by AIACHE. We hope that one day this programme could be implemented in all colleges in our country.

As we face many challenges owing to crises in values, it is our responsibility to guide our youth to identify right human values and also to inculcate in them a sense of personal identity and growth. Consequently, we are educating them to accept duties and responsibilities with it. The colleges/universities are free to add more input depending on the needs of colleges while implementing the Human Values Development Programme.

I acknowledge the input initially made by all the team members involved in the preparations of this book in the first edition. I also thank all the Principals who reviewed the book and for their suggestions.

The Chief editors of the second edition of HVDP are Mr.PWC Davidar IAS, Principal Secretary(P&AR), Govt. of Tamil Nadu and Dr.Shanthi Davidar, Consultant Psychiatrist in Chennai. They have given so much of their time and helped AIACHE to bring up this 2nd edition and we gratefully acknowledge their contribution. We are also grateful to the Rapha Unlimited team in Chennai for their inputs and assistance in processing this edition. A special mention is made of the brilliant work done by Go Media Chennai for the Layout and Design that has made this edition student-friendly.

Dr.Daniel Ezhilarasu
General Secretary, AIACHE

Human Values Development program is an effort to bring alive the concept of moral and ethically good values to you through the classroom and thus into higher education. College life gives you the opportunity to discuss and debate several issues. This value education module is designed not to be taught but to enable you to be caught up with strong morally driven values. Even as you move into the different issues of life that are presented within the pages, take it as an opportunity to concretize and internalize the values that will help you go through life as an accomplished person with integrity. Live right - live well.
